TRADITIONAL SARDINIAN PRODUCTS

In 1988, the brother Farris — Efisio and Francesco — opened Arcodoro, the first Sardinian restaurant in the U.S., to great acclaim. The restaurateurs learned quickly that, in order to be authentic and consistent, they needed ingredients directly from the motherland. Thus the importing began. Come this month, Gourmet Sardinia launches, allowing guests and cooking-class devotees a chance to bring home the very ingredients that make the sup so super. House wines directly from Sardinian vineyards will be available soon.
